I first met Bob in the Garfield Cadets - he was a very talented horn player and actually became "my rookie" in his first season.

He never failed to amaze me with his desire to be the best in his position and maintain the Cadets's highest standards on the field and off the field.

His years volunteering to assist the Plebes horn line goes above and beyond the call of a Cadet.

Bob's greatest Cadet Season was when he assisted Frank Dorritte in 1977 when he helped teach those gals in the color guard to play horns at the ending of the show which included the famous "AMEN".

He went on to judge multiple corps and became a judging caption head for Drum Corps Associates. He was appointed to the Drum Corps Hall of Fame.

He also taught various high school bands in New Jersey as well as running his own Cruise Business. He has run many "Drum Corps" cruises over the years and helps raise money for many organizations.

He is a man of many talents and has taken many traits from that first year in the Cadets and deserves to be admitted to the Cadets Hall of Fame.
